

PIERCE COUNTY

1852

COUNTY SEAT: TACOMA

Named for Franklin Pierce, 14th president of the U.S., who was elected to office just two days before the county was created

Traditional home of Nisqually, Puyallup, Muckleshoot, Steilacoom, and Squaxin Island American Indian people

Pierce County stretches from the beaches and islands of Puget Sound to the towering summit of Mount Rainier. It was the site in 1832 of the first non-Native settlement in Puget Sound country – a Hudson’s Bay Company fur-trading post near the mouth of the Nisqually River. Barely four decades later, in 1873, the frontier port of Tacoma became the proud Puget Sound terminus of the first transcontinental railroad line to reach the Pacific Northwest.

27

6-28-02

PIERCE COUNTY

COUNTY SEAT: TACOMA

1852

NAMED FOR FRANKLIN PIERCE, 14TH PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, WHO WAS ELECTED TO OFFICE SHORTLY BEFORE THE COUNTY WAS CREATED
TRADITIONAL HOME OF NISQUALLY, PUYALLUP, MUCKLESHOOT, STEILACOOM AND SQUAXIN ISLAND AMERICAN INDIAN PEOPLE

PIERCE COUNTY STRETCHES FROM THE BEACHES AND ISLANDS OF PUGET SOUND TO THE TOWERING SUMMIT OF MOUNT RAINIER. IT WAS THE SITE IN 1832 OF THE FIRST NON-NATIVE SETTLEMENT IN PUGET SOUND COUNTRY - A HUDSON'S BAY COMPANY FUR-TRADING POST NEAR THE MOUTH OF THE NISQUALLY RIVER. BARELY FOUR DECADES LATER, IN 1873, THE FRONTIER PORT OF TACOMA BECAME THE PROUD PUGET SOUND TERMINUS OF THE FIRST TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILROAD LINE TO REACH THE PACIFIC NORTHWEST.